

US ambassador killed in Libya attack

UNDER ATTACK AGAIN The US consulate in Benghazi, Libya, burns on Tuesday after an attack by militants said to be protecting an allegedly anti-Prophet Muhammad Internet video produced in the United States. The American ambassador and three other consulate staff were killed when their car that was speeding to get them to safer ground was hit by a rocket.

BENGHAZI, Libya—The US ambassador to Libya and three other consulate staff were killed when their car was hit by a rocket attack on their way to a Libyan official said, as they were rushed from a consulate building stormed by militants demanding a US-made Internet video attacking the Prophet Muhammad.

Ambassador Christopher Stevens, who had led the Libyan revolt that overthrew Moammar Gadhafi, was killed on Tuesday evening less than six months after being appointed to his post.

The Libyan official said Stevens was being driven from the consulate building to a safer location when gunmen opened fire.

"The American ambassador and three staff members were killed when gunmen fired rockets at them," the official said in Benghazi, a center of last year's uprising against Gadhafi.

US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton confirmed the death of a US consulate diplomat in Libya, who was not identified, and condemned the attack there. But she made no mention of an attack on the ambassador.

US ambassadors in such volatile countries are accompanied by night security.

Enrile bares Senate coup

Now, Puno faces 2 probes in Congress

By Christine V. Espasas and Cathy Yanesa

MANILA It takes, it seems for assigned Justice Undersecretary Raul E. Puno.

Besides a Senate hearing scheduled for tomorrow, Puno will also be investigated by the House committee on public order and safety in connection with the purchase of around 30,000 Philippine worth P1 billion for the Philippine National Police.

The investigation will take place in about two weeks because the chamber is still preoccupied with primary deliberations on the proposed P2-billion national budget, said Cebu Rep. Raulo John Garcia, chair of the committee.

Nora: Big-time comeback queen

By Bayard San Diego Jr. Entertainment

TALK OF comeback doesn't date singer-actress Nora Enrile. Without skipping a beat, she sat in elegant Filipinas when asked about the secret of her staying power. "Only the Man opens in heaven the cover," she said.

Responding to the country's reporter, Enrile's life and career have been defined by amazing highs and heartbreaking lows. She's currently riding on the high wave of wider fame, having given her career a new lease in life.

"We should all support indie films. The government should give additional assistance to independent producers," she said.

Recently, she coined another triumph when she was given the Brilliant Mind award for her performance in Brilliant Mind—a story at this year's Venice International Film Festival.

She was the first actor and actress to receive the honor from the Premio Delta Cinema Indipendente, a critics' group that is autonomous from the Venice fest, director Monica

'Some not happy with my leadership'

By Norman Borja

SENATE President Juan Ponce Enrile has said he wants all Filipinos to be happy but concedes he can't please all his colleagues in the chamber.

Enrile yesterday said that he had received information about a plot to oust him as Senate President as early as about a month ago.

A number of senators are unhappy with the way he's running the affairs of the Senate, particularly budget allocation and positions in the chamber, he said.

"There are always people who are unhappy with the leadership of anybody," Enrile said, rejecting when asked about the rumor.

In an interview with radio station DWL earlier yesterday, Enrile said he heard that a certain senator told the story about a coup being planned either during a lunch or dinner event.

NFA permits used to smuggle rice, Senate finds

By Herman Badarina

SENATE President Juan Ponce Enrile, who co-chaired a Senate panel on the unexplained use of the National Food Authority's (NFA) import permits to provide legal cover for smuggled rice that find their way to the country's shores.

Enrile and Sen. Francis Pangilinan, chair of the Senate committee on agriculture, filed the joint inquiry into the shipment has uncovered a media report of smugglers in which several NFA importers provide the needed documents to legitimize the entry of smuggled rice, such as in the case of the late Senator Enrile.

It was also used in a failed attempt to smuggle more than 100,000 metric tons of Vietnamese rice in May 2011 this month.

"We've seen this already in the case of the Indian rice [in 2011]. These import permits have been legitimized around," Enrile said.

Safeguards needed

The Senate said that while the lack of confidence in the leadership of Customs Commissioner Edwin Blazquez and NFA Administrator Zilda Iñiguez, but given the importance of rice should have more safeguards. He asked NFA undersecretary Jose G. Guevara at the hearing, whether the import documents of the NFA were printed on accountable forms. The answer was "no".

But Guevara said such a critical flaw in the system has not been reduced by importation, which is reduced every time the order works a memorandum of understanding from the NFA, to cover shipments of rice.

While he was not saying that these import permits were being recycled, Enrile said it was not so limited that it is not being recycled. "It's import record stand all over again. Many people have been writing policies, documents," said Enrile who noted as cautious consultation early in the 20-year rule of the late Senator Pineda.

Penalties: Pangilinan said that if the rice is found in a large quantity, it may be given authority for release of a limited NFA import permit to prevent the NFA with a request for a memorandum of understanding.

Mean for Indonesia

Enrile said the documents have to be submitted before the arrival of the rice shipment.

"We don't see what happened with India," Pangilinan said, referring to the Indonesian rice shipment in the Indian port that was seized by import documents from a limited NFA importers.

The import documents have been seized and the Indonesian rice shipment has been seized by authorities.

The Indian rice, supplied by New Delhi-based rice exporter Janta Foods, was seized by Indonesian rice importers but was rejected by Indonesian port authorities. The shipment found its way to the Sabar Kaya port where it was seized by the Bureau of Customs (BCT) in a warehouse operated by export firms.

Vietnam rice

Enrile said the statistics show that NFA documents were also presented to cover the shipment of more than 100,000 bags of rice from Vietnam in the May case earlier this month.

However, the current officials denied the documents to be involved, thus failing the smuggling charges, he said.

Meanwhile, another player in the rice trade was ordered to show cause why it should not be cited for smuggling after a longer case mentioned his import papers indicated that the documents were indeed his in yet another case involving a shipment of Vietnamese rice. Sen. Enrile, Maril, president and CEO of Mangrove Import and Export, in a previous case denied any involvement in the shipment of 90 containers of Vietnamese rice in Sabar Kaya.

The shipment was likely declared as containing coconut this material.

P-Noy sees 6% growth for the year

By Villegas

THE PHILIPPINES, riding on a 5.7-percent economic growth in the semi-annual and a phenomenal rise in global competitiveness, is poised to post 6-percent economic growth for the year President Aquino said yesterday.

Mr. Aquino, under the country's "20-year vision" to 2040, placed one of 140 economies in the World Economic Forum's Global Competitiveness Report for 2011 to 2013, and 5.9 percent GDP growth in the second quarter, crediting Filipinos for action on "leadership for the change."

"There were two 'best indicators' of our collective success," Mr. Aquino told business leaders attending the BSM Think Tank at the Manila Hotel.

"The Philippines is only on the right path. Everyone—our companies and workers, our leaders of industry both in the country and beyond its shores, our agencies, firms and other governments—share our vision," Mr. Aquino said in his speech.

He noted that the Philippines had jumped another 10 places to rank 63rd out of 140 economies in global competitiveness when its 2010 index ranked 80th.

"There is no one, but there is a challenge in such a 20-year jump in ranking. Since we rank first, allow me to emphasize that this is the first time we have broken into the top-50 percent of countries since 1994, the year the Philippines was first included in the report," he said.

"The economy expanded 5.9 percent in the second quarter, one of the highest recorded among countries in the region."

On target

"All of our plans, we'll be on target in achieving targets," he said. A 6 percent GDP (gross domestic product) growth for 2012, Mr. Aquino declared in a spirited speech which drew applause from a "half-full" and "half-empty glass" audience on the economy.

"These achievements, together with the 60 most highly of the Philippine Stock Exchange Index, and the fact that the Philippines is now only one step below investment grade, according to one of the three major ratings agencies, show that we are well on our way to filling up the half-full glass," he added.

All these positive economic gains and the international community's positive outlook on the country's performance were a complete departure from 2010, when he assumed the presidency, Mr. Aquino said.

"Two years ago, who would have wanted to know as the Philippines' Capitalism Index, despite progress and widespread corruption made the playing field anything but level," he said.

He said that in the first few months of his presidency, the administration had to grapple with a grave concern: "How to balance the need for basic lawmaking and repairing the eroded base of our institutions, while competing in the global arena."

"There were times in those early days when the glass would have been half-empty, when the amount of problems we encountered may have threatened to overwhelm us," he said.

But the administration moved in general and started out reforming good governance principles, firmly believing that "good lawmaking would result in a stabilized and progressive industry," Mr. Aquino said.

"We know that if we keep working along the straight path, in the direction that the Filipino people see for us, we would achieve our shared aspirations. Institutions free from corruption and the politics of self-interest, a society that values equal opportunity and inclusive growth, and most importantly an empowered citizenry," he said.

He said that in the last two years after the country's political and put in two months "Vigilance history of politics of corruption."

Napolcom staff remember Jesse: Puno faces 2 probes

He liked 'putok,' 'Aristo-Back'

By Mike Calaga

Members and officials of the National Police Commission (Napolcom) honored the late Interior Secretary Jesse Puno with a posthumous award yesterday, stating some of his greatest legacy was a "putok" and simple guy for men.

Napolcom personnel hardly remembered him as the agency's top official who would give a monthly bonus for his "putok," a head-on smile and a handshake with a pat on the back.

The said top employees called the canteen "Aristo-Back," a place on the name of a well-known restaurant in Manila. Puno's personal car was not at the office for his last month because he had to travel, and he was not in the office for his last month because he was not in the office for his last month.

Power refunds planned in Mindanao

By Amy K. Rowe

ONE OF the biggest power firms operating in Mindanao has started the process of giving refunds to consumers that could ease electricity rates on the island that is still reeling from an unstable power supply.

In a statement, Abbot Power Corp. (APC) said it will comply with the request by the National Energy Commission (NEC) to refund the cost of electricity that it sold to consumers that it sold to them at a higher price than it was able to recover.

Only IOC can pick own members

By Jane Marston

THE PHILIPPINE Olympic Committee has no say on the choice of the 2012 International Olympic Committee representative in the Philippines.

IOC representative Jerry Brannaman, who was named to the IOC, is the only body authorized to pick the member of Frank Blalock, who will have the mandatory interview at the IOC.

Brannaman explained that Blalock was picked for his experience in the IOC, but the IOC has absolutely nothing to do with it.

"It's the IOC which chooses its representative."

Hospital offers P100K in missing baby case

THE HOSPITAL where a newborn was abducted on Sept. 4 has offered a P100,000 reward for any information that could lead to the recovery of the baby boy. In a press conference, Quezon City Police District Director Chief Supt. Mario de la Haza yesterday read a letter from St. Francis Hospital director Marlon Ordoñez asking the offer. De la Haza said the SFPD will continue to look for the unidentified person who took the baby from the mother, Ma. Cecilia de los Santos, who was giving an abortion.

THE POLICEMAN accused of extorting money from the son of National Capital Region Police Office (NCRO) director Chief Supt. Leonardo Espina was ordered dismissed from the service yesterday for a similar offense he committed in 2009, this time involving the son of a retired military general.

With his name chopped from the police roster, SPO4 Jose de la Peña Jr. rose from the list of officers of his previous branch PNP-010.

Aside from De la Peña, 13 other policemen have been ordered sent from the service for various offenses. They were identified as Supt. Rogelio Blandin, a former Manila police station commander; Police Officers 1 Benjamin Gonzalez, Adolfo Bautista Jr., Rommel Saldaña, Nicky Higinio, Eric Balana and Antonio Guevara; Police Officers 2 Rodolfo Riquelme, Allan Peralta Bautista and Rogelio Gonzalez; and SPO4 Pedro Antonio Linares.

Also ordered dismissed were 10 PNP personnel in the 2009 exercise case—SPO4 Officers 3 Ruben de Jesus and Carlos Briones; and Police Officers 2 Daniel de Jesus and Daniel Briones.

Blandin told reporters at Camp Crame that the dismissal orders against the rogues involved had been approved even before he became NCRO chief on Sept. 7.

He added that De la Peña and 12 were based on a complaint filed by former Army Gen. Cesar Cayson.

Blandin said he decided to make an example of De la Peña to stress that he was serious in cleaning the NCRO of wrongdoing.

A police investigation showed that on June 1, 2009, Cayson's son was driving his car when he was flagged down by De la Peña.

Mayor Lim vetoes oil depot removal

By Harry C. Carvajal

MANILA Mayor Alfredo Lim has vetoed the ordinance which calls for the closure of the Pandacan oil depot, saying the move might hurt others. "As a sign of political immunity and would [harm] a bad reputation [on] business and investment which are on stability and predictability of government actions," Lim said his decision was based on the recommendations made by Pandacan de la Cruz, the city's legal officer and Executive Committee, the secretary to the mayor. Both are lawyers.

Ordinance 8893 which was passed by the city council last month authorized the area where the oil facility is located from an industrial to a commercial zone, paving the way for the closure of the depot which is under the category of heavy industrial.

De la Cruz said the ordinance did not say how the city would cope with the loss of income from the oil depot's operations.

"The ordinance also fails to consider how the abrupt relocation of the oil depot will impact on the distribution system which will definitely translate to costs that will ultimately be reflected in the prices of oil and petroleum products," he added.

Banks ordered to report foreign borrowing plans

New BSP directive meant to monitor inflows

By Michael V. Reutter

IMCI continues over a potential surge in foreign capital inflows and to stimulate efforts, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas has told banks and other organizations: according to senior bank executives to disclose their foreign investments since 2013.

According to the IMF, confidence in inflows of foreign investments arising from borrowings will help give it a better grasp of the situation. Monetary liquidity about to enter the economy which should be carefully monitored.

Knowledge of estimated inflows in the form of borrowings also will give monetary officials a rough idea of how much of the foreign inflows of foreign capital would be in the nature of profitable investments.

Inflationary or foreign currency inflows add to the preparation of appropriate policies against the destabilizing effects of excessive liquidity within the economy.

It is a public notice posted in its website, the IMF will explain that aimed to increase its foreign interventions next year should submit their plans before the end of the month.

Russian tech firm expands into PH

By Paolo G. Manalillo

MANILA—Technology firm Sals Technology Inc. is set to do big in the Philippines, thanks to the growing prospects of the country's booming business process outsourcing (BPO) industry.

At a briefing the week last, Sals, known as Salsnet in its domestic market, said it knew the Philippines would be its first overseas market. The former Russia, China, and India outsourcing customer was currently doing

"The strategic approach to contact clients can really benefit Philippine companies. Our sales force can cut operational and, at the same time, enable them to enter to provide high-quality services," Sals CEO Andrey Salazar said in his briefing in Manila.

Sals offers software solutions for BPO firms, particularly in the call-center areas. Its products range from teleworking, or voice over Internet Protocol (VOIP) systems.

Through its "Contact Center" solution, Sals said it aims to provide immediate client a cost-effective, complete, and comprehensive way to manage their in-bound and out-bound calls.

"Sals can give its partners complete pricing, training, and certification for its partners' technicians, and sales people, technical support services, in implementation, and complete documentation for implementing and sales purposes," the company said in a statement.

Sals said the Philippine BPO industry has not only made the country a leading player in the BPO industry.

The Philippines is now ranked as the world leader in voice-based BPO services, thanks largely to the high level of English proficiency in the local workforce.

The Philippine BPO sector, which employs 528,000 workers, booked $12.1 billion in revenues in 2011.

Industry forecasts show the sector growing 20 percent annually to more than double in size by 2016.

Ricky Brown shares his fondest memories as a Great Taste Coffee Maker

Manila, PH—Decades after his retirement from Philippine Basketball Association (PBA) Ricky Brown valued the country nearly as much as his wife, children, colleagues, and fans. It was a sense of pride and accomplishment at different occasions that, to him, led him to this important role from his basketball days to his current role as the Great Taste Coffee Maker.

Another highlight of Brown's new role was his meeting with Lito Lacson, president and chief operating officer of Universal Robina Corporation (URC), and son of former President Corason Aquino (now Vice President). Lito Lacson is the president of the company that owns the Great Taste Coffee Maker.

Brown's role as Great Taste Coffee Maker is to share his experiences and insights about the coffee industry with the public. He is also a member of the Great Taste Coffee Maker's Advisory Board.

Francisco Robredo

On the day of his death—a week ago—he was in Cebu for an official function. He already looked a bit of a day after it if it meant missing his daughter's wedding ceremony—something that he had already said he would do.

He had said a place to go to his daughter's wedding with his family. He had said a place to go to his daughter's wedding with his family.

He had said a place to go to his daughter's wedding with his family. He had said a place to go to his daughter's wedding with his family.

There are rumors of former president and other sensitive matters being investigated by law enforcement.

It is only natural for people to want to know more about what is going on. It is only natural for people to want to know more about what is going on.

President Aquino's investigation into the death of Senator Robredo is a step in the right direction. It is a step in the right direction.

Mobile Internet now more pervasive in PH, says Smart

WITH PHILIPPINE Smart's new survey, improving network coverage, and increasing service reach and reliability, mobile internet in the Philippines has become more pervasive than it has ever been.

According to Smart Broadband Internet and Data Services Head, Lloyd Manalillo, the government's push for mobile internet has greatly increased the Philippines' growing appetite for mobile internet access, prompting the wireless leader to stay ahead of demand.

He has been on the rise in demand in terms of last year which is why we experienced "super-charging" our mobile network," said Manalillo.

The PwC's Millenium report which Smart has recently completed in cooperation with parent company, PLDT, has made its mobile internet service more accessible to more Filipinos nationwide using the latest 4G and 3G technologies.

An estimated 9,500 base stations which have been installed with the latest mobile equipment along with a nationwide network of 30,000s of fiber optic cabling have increased Smart's capability to deliver high-speed internet.

The completion of the upgrade comes at an opportune time as a study by market research firm GfK reveals that Android, the world's most popular operating system, is now the most popular in the Philippines.

Smart subscribers enjoy the benefits of being on a future-proof, world-class network, especially when using mobile internet.

"This is certainly good news especially considering that the average Android smartphone price in the Philippines is below P10,000," said Manalillo.

The GfK study further reveals that up to 95% of those who are equipped with 3G High Speed Packet Access Plus (HSPA+) technology that making high speed mobile data access possible.

"Our supercharged network is now ready to deploy LTE, HSPA+, and 3G to provide the data speeds required given the demand of the subscribers," said Manalillo.

Along with improving its 3G coverage, Smart has also deployed its Long Term Evolution (LTE) network. Dubbed the faster fourth generation (4G) wireless technology in the world, LTE is capable of speeds of over 100Mbps.

Smart is offering the service at select areas in Metro Manila for P10,500 a month with speeds of up to 42Mbps. Subscribers can enjoy the service on an unlimited basis until October 25, 2012, after which a 1GB cap will take effect.

"We can switch on our Long Term Evolution service in more areas at the push of a button whenever and wherever it is needed," said PLDT-Smart Network and IP Systems Head Rolando G. Peralta.

Smart LTE makes possible downloading large files, streaming, streaming high definition videos with no buffering, and playing online games with no lag because of its high speed and low latency.

Smart LTE is one of the first and most affordable in the world.

My best tips, recipes for perfect 'inihaw na liempo'

From the marinade to the charcoal-grilling

KITCHEN RESCUE

Reggie Lapina

- Few things are more delicious than a 10-inch slab, browned, deliciously marinated, char-grilled piece of pork belly. In fact, no thing is more delicious in another way I make pork.
- Here are some of my recipes and tips. Call best received with Lapina!
- Local liempo/pork to tender.
 - I like mine not to be too dark, brown, brown.
 - Pork liempo that is griddled, with or even browning of fat and meat.
 - Marinate your pork overnight. If you can't, try getting a nice outdoor marinade (available at Goodies and Home TV Shopping). I use it and it works like a charm, especially when I have time to make a marinade. I do a couple of marinades, at least three.
 - In general, I do not marinate longer than 24 hours. If you've marinated the meat and changed your mind about grilling it immediately, take it out of the marinade (if liquid) and brown the meat. Porky ribs, not to be marinated in the house.
 - Marinate the refrigerator using large and sturdy brown bags that can hold all the liquid contents.
 - Use lighter soy sauce, especially when a recipe calls for a lot. There's no bigger loss off than a soy sauce-marinated piece of liempo.
 - Always taste your marinade. If you are using a lot of soy sauce, or if you are using a lot of soy sauce, you will not be happy with the result. To adjust with pepper, sugar, onion to taste.
 - To prevent meat from drying out, brush both the meat and the grill with oil before grilling.
 - Arrange your charcoal fire to high, hot to high. The heat on the left side should be about five inches from the grill grate; this is where you put your liempo. Increase water and distance to four inches, then by the rest of the grill, the distance between coal and grill should be three inches. This is where you grill the meat for the perfect golden color the meat was chosen on this setting.
 - Do not keep turning your pork. Grill there for five minutes on each side on the left side of the grill. The idea is to gently "sear" the meat, not to burn it. The meat should be cooked, not to burn it. The meat should be cooked, not to burn it.
 - Call to order especially if you're a lot of liempo in your marinade or having some in the house.
 - Cook a couple of charred pieces in a dedicated outdoor or indoor grill. Use those clips to hold your fat.
 - Cook should have been turning the meat for 15-20 minutes (depending on which grill you used before you start grilling). This means less the meat. By then, you know the meat is cooked and perfect.
 - If you have a lot to grill, use common sense. They have begun and are to be cooked before you start grilling.
 - Keep a good knowledge by adding more or less of each piece of meat (depending on the size of meat and your grill) as a more, before the burning meat are extinguished, or it would be cooking over.

Simon Cowell (right) auditioned new recruits; (far right) Lela Rose, David Laroche and Britney Spears joined for a Spotlight.

'X Factor' finds second chance in Britney Spears

LAK ARIZONA... Britney Spears makes her debut this week as the biggest celebrity judge on X Factor in a revamped version of "The X Factor."

Spears, 38, was tapped to join "The X Factor" by reported $15 million salary. "X Factor" executive Simon Cowell is looking for her help. For him and a strong conviction to give her a second chance with another reality show, the opportunity first came last year that attracted about 11.5 million viewers, and ended with the firing of two judges and the host.

In real, "The Voice," which was watched by an average 13.8 million Americans last season, got off to a rocky start on Monday.

Meanwhile, the new show's revamped host on board, in a line programming move by NBC that Cowell considered too much as a mean-spirited host.

"I think it's going to be a really tight race," said James Van Der Beek, another entertainment media executive.

Miss Mean
A survey by Yahoo! TV and Entertainment Weekly showed that 60 percent of those questioned were excited about Spears joining "X Factor."

of 36 to 35 female viewers said they would tune in to see her perform, and follow her judge, 30-year-old singer Demi Lovato, will take.

Spears is little known outside her stage persona. But according to advance clips of early audition rounds, she has a sharp tongue for poor singers. "She is surprisingly quite mean. She is difficult to please," Cowell said.

But CBS said that Spears was not well known for any off-stage work. Lovato, however, and others are in for a surprise.

"The world hasn't really got a chance to see her [Britney's] personality... and now this is the perfect opportunity for people to see. She is very sexy and funny and go go!" Lovato said.

Cowell is also aware that it takes more than just judge-forever talent to make a show distinguish itself in a crowded field.

The new "X Factor" has more major female stars. It will have more of a variety show element, with lots of behind-the-scenes action.

"You have got to make a difference show to completely take advantage of what she can do," Cowell said. Spears
